

Catherine Davidson - BIO

Catherine Davidson is the University Librarian for Ontario Tech University and Chief Librarian for Durham College. Before joining her current institutions, she held a variety of roles at York University Libraries, including several years as Associate University Librarian for Collections and Research. Throughout her career, Catherine has contributed to accessibility initiatives, digital scholarship development, and Truth and Reconciliation efforts in both university and college libraries.

She is committed to fostering inclusive, innovative, and student-centered spaces and works to forge meaningful connections and collaborations with key partners across the institution to ensure libraries remain not only knowledge hubs but vital forces for student success, research excellence, and community engagement.